1. Business question

Understand why revenue performance weakened in Q4, identify the regions, products and customer segments requiring management attention, and agree actions that can improve retention and delivery performance.

2. Data used

BizLens_Test_Sales_Data.csv; 1,200 rows, 12 columns, Jan-Dec 2025. The primary executive comparison is Q3->Q4. Full-dataset totals are labelled separately to avoid mixing aggregation scopes.

3. Method

- Primary period: Q3->Q4 2025.
- Secondary monitoring context may use later periods, but does not replace the primary comparison.
- Revenue is analysed by region, product, customer segment and channel.
- South SLA and support tickets/order are aligned to the same Q3->Q4 period.
- Cancellation evidence is assessed for sufficiency before interpretation.

4. Executive findings

- Total revenue changed -1.6% from Q3 to Q4.
- South revenue changed -2.1% from Q3 to Q4.
- South SLA changed -9.7 percentage points.
- South support tickets/order changed +32.8%.
- Cloud Suite and Analytics Pro declined in South; Enterprise and Partner were offsets.
- Only one cancellation is recorded, so service-to-cancellation causality cannot be established.

E-008	South channel mix	Direct -11.7%; Online -5.7%; Partner +15.9%.	South, Q3->Q4
E-009	Cancellation evidence	Only 1 recorded cancellation exists in the connected dataset. This is insufficient for a customer-level causal analysis.	Full connected dataset
E-010	Business context	Management evidence identifies South as a priority area and raises delivery/SLA and cancellation concerns. Customer-level linkage is required before causal interpretation.	Business documents

8. Interpretation and limitations

- South is a management focus based on business context, not simply because it has the largest raw decline.
- Product/segment/channel movements are contribution signals and should be ranked by absolute revenue impact before intervention.
- Service deterioration is a correlated operational signal, not a confirmed root cause.
- Cancellation analysis requires richer customer/order-level evidence.
- Targets, costs and ROI are not supplied and are therefore not invented.
